

Retail Market Review Response

The simple solution to level the playing field would be to force all energy supply companies to declare their latest pricing structures on fixed dates every six months or each year. Only this way can consumers make true comparisons between tariffs.

Regards

A solid black rectangular box used to redact the signature of the sender.