

To whom it may concern

I feel compelled to protest against the construction of the gigantic windfarm planned for the Shetland Isles. The approval of this monstrosity will damage the sensitive natural environment beyond recognition. The majority of Shetland residents, bar the few who stand to make personal gain from this project, do not want massive industrial landscapes. The community directly affected have suffered for the last 10yrs fighting for answers and have attempted to have their voices heard but we appear to have been swept aside. Those who have tried will continue to suffer mental anguish should this debacle go ahead. I urge you to please have a conscience and consider what this will mean for the people of Shetland, the wildlife, the ecology and the sensitive infrastructure.
