
From: Mark Purcell [REDACTED]
Sent: 19 December 2007 10:52
To: Es&SMarkets
Subject: consultation - Cutting green customer confusion

Hi

I think it's important that when domestic consumers purchase "green electricity", the supply must be above and beyond what suppliers have to provide by law, otherwise it will eventually send a signal to domestic consumers that there is no point in trying. That is a very bad signal to send.

Best wishes,
Mark