Dear Ms Nixon

Consultation Response: Strategy for the next transmission price control - RIIO-T1 Overview paper

Scottish Renewables is the representative voice for the renewable energy industry in Scotland, influencing the legislative, regulatory and financial framework to deliver the best possible conditions for the industry's growth on behalf of over 300 member organisations¹. The renewables industry is playing a crucial role in Scotland's efforts to tackle climate change and increase the nation's energy security, and must continue to do so in order to meet our renewable energy and greenhouse gas emission reduction targets.

Scottish Renewables shall be submitting a joint response to the above consultation with RenewableUK, and we refer you to this response in relation to the questions and issues raised in the consultation document. We would like to take this opportunity to highlight the importance of this strategy as part of a much wider review of electricity regulation and market arrangements. It is therefore crucial that a joined-up approach is taken to ensure consistency across all of these changes.

Yours sincerely

Catherine Birkbeck
Policy Manager – Grid & Markets
