Answer:	Within this Project, we will interface with consumers directly, via a third party and in conjunction with another stakeholder (for example we may engage with a consumer and the landlord to gain their agreement for the installation of a monitoring device in a premises). The interface arrangements may be through a contractual or commercial relationship or via direct control, contingent on the circumstances. The main outcome will be to identify the most appropriate solutions for the future. For example we will engage directly with consumers to promote energy efficiency which may or may not be defined with an agreement; we will engage with consumers utilising EV refueling stations through commercial and/ or control arrangements to manage network utilisation. We envisage creating a demand side management capability and the first step within this Project is proving that consumers will be willing and able to contract with an Aggregator for demand side provision at the distribution level. We will introduce EnerNOC to our consortium partners and we will contract with
