

The above consultation roll out strategy (reference 94g/10) indicates that this initiative applies to Great Britain. It does not appear to include Northern Ireland. It also appears to refer to electricity and gas meters although I understand that there is scope for ultimately including water meters (although there is no domestic water metering in Northern Ireland). However, it refers to a National awareness campaign - which could include all of the UK (including Northern Ireland). There would appear to be a risk that NI customers could be alerted to a scheme that doesn't apply here. Care will need to be taken in targetting the awareness campaign to GB only.
