

Dear Will

Please see the NIA notification attached below that has come to my attention.

Much of what Ofgem proposes within the consultation appears to address many of the non-compliance challenges/issues that we regularly encounter during our daily activities.

I confirm that we are currently making a relatively simple, practical and cost effective offering to a number of the energy suppliers and larger installers that if adopted would address most, if not all of your proposals.

Briefly, our offering that is not limiting to any size of business from plc all the way down to SMEs has the potential to allow full ECO/Ofgem compliance with little, if any disruption to legitimate workflows.

Our offering is an electronically managed and controlled system providing geotagging for location as well as day and time notation of all activities. The electronic flow of data along with remote management of for UK wide chartered surveyor resources allows projected workload to be checked in accordance with Ofgem requirements and to proceed uninterrupted to install with a complete audit trail that includes the use of video camera boroscopes to record the Chartered Surveyors findings as well as measuring devices for cavity depths, all with built in anti-fraud functions. Again, the electronic flow of data on passed or failed inspections could potentially be relayed instantly back to the installer, energy supplier and Ofgem or indeed all three.

Our partnering organisation has the resource and capability to service the entire UK, providing the level of reassurance, quality and professionalism that the ECO programme warrants.

We are not seeking any form of monopoly or recognition from Ofgem, but felt that during the consultation period, Ofgem may wish to see and hear of methodologies by which any adopted proposals could be delivered in good time.

Our team would welcome the opportunity to describe and demonstrate a potential solution to Ofgem and/or the members of Energy UK upon whom the proposals may at first sight appear to impact upon.

I hope this is of interest to you and I would appreciate a speedy response on the level of interest that you have concerning meeting with us.

I look forward to meeting you and your team.

Best regards

Phil Beynon
European Business Executive
ECO-OMG