Notes on question
Answer	Researchers from the University of Exeter will collaborate with Durham University to provide expertise on community engagement and the social response to the propositions being trialled under ACE. Durham will be the lead partner responsible for the delivery of the objectives and work programme, and Exeter will be subcontracted to Durham. Professor Patrick Devine Wright, who will work with a research associate at Exeter on the project, brings a long track record of research with the electricity supply industry in the UK and Europe concerning the opportunities and challenges of fostering public engagement with new technologies and energy infrastructure. Prof. Devine Wright will contribute his expertise in psychology, his knowledge of community-based responses to energy issues, and his experience of how these issues are being addressed in other regions of the UK, Ireland and Norway to the project.
