Subject: Underground cables

Currently National Grid “hide” behind RIIO saying that Ofgem will not allow more cables to be buried, even when it can be shown that the socio-economic risk to the consumer community is tangible National Grid spend considerable sums of our money effectively “bad mouthing” what appears to be an effective regulatory regime.

There needs to be a mechanism within RIIO that allows expenditure to protect consumer value such as property value and tourism revenue.

On Anglesey, the current framework is just not working
